CHAPTER V.

As Elizabeth opened her eyes the next morning, the tall clock in the room below was striking eight, and she started up with the provoking consciousness that she had overslept herself; and it was all owing to a vivid and terri-ble dream. The golden atmosphere of poetry, which had yesterday hovered around Sabina's narrative, had become a cloud in the night, the shadow of which embittered and burdened the first moments of her awakening. She had been flying in deadly terror through the spacious. dreary halls of the old castle, always pursued by Jost. Thick curls were waving wildly above the house. Little Ernst ran to her in the hall, his pale forehead, beneath which his black eyes gleamed upon her, and she had just atreached. gleamed upon her, and she had just stretched out her arms in greater terror than she had ever captured by her tormentor.

She sprang up and bathed her face in cold water, then she opened her window and looked out into the court-yard. There sat Sabina under a pear tree, busy with her churn. All the feathered crowd of the place stood around, looking impatiently for the crumbs that she threw to console the oppressed and down-trodden. When she saw the young girl, she nodded kindly, and called up to her to say that every one in the lodge had been busy up there in the old castle since six o'clock. When Elizabeth reproached her for letting her sleep so long, she assured her she had done so by the express desire of her mother, who thought that her daughter had overtasked her strength in the last few weeks of excitement and exertion

Sabina's kind, placid face, and the fresh air of the morning soothed Elizabeth's nerves at once, and brought back her thoughts to the world of reality which was just now opening so brightly before her. She took herself seriously to task that, despite her uncle's fatherly admonition, she had leaned out of the open window until midnight upon the previous night, gazing across the moonlit meadow into the silent forest. But common sense often plays a poor part when opposed to excited fancy. Where it should conduct a rigid examination and discriminate wisely, it suddenly finds itself deserted in the judgment-seat, and must retire in confusion, while the varied and motley spectacle which fancy conjures up proceeds without interruption. Thus Elizabeth's self-reproaches soon vanished before the picture which presented itself to her memory, and still threw around her all the magic of a moonlit night in

As soon as she had dressed and drank tumbler of fresh milk, she hastened up to the castle. The sky was overcast, but only with those light, thin clouds which foretell a fresh although not a sunny, spring day. Therefore the birds' morning concert was of longer dura-tion than usual, and the dew-drops lay as large and full in the cups of the flowers as if the existence for the day was not threatened.

As Elizabeth entered the large gate of the castle, which stood wide open, a huge green mound, piled up by the fountain, met her eye It was formed of thistle-stalks, ferns, and bramble-bushes, which had been torn from their home in the garden, and were here bidding farewell to their long, merry life. The path through the arched gateway of the second court-yard to the grating was strewn with green boughs and leaves, as though a joyous marriage train had been passing through the old ruins; and even on the sill of a high window, that showed the remains of a colored glass in the lacework of the stone rosette of its pointed arch, some boughs had been caught as they were carried past, and the trailing end of a wild vine was coiling its living green lovingly around the stone trefoil of the Holy Trinity, which be trayed unmistakably that the dark, dreary hall within had once been a chapel of the castle. The garden, where yesterday it had been impossible to take two steps, seemed to Elizabeth entirely changed. A considerable part of it green rampart which had only been seen from a distance yesterday. "There is Lindhof," said the forester, point- are busy with the last novel or a piquante bit of ing to a large building in the Italian style, that court scandal—for an interest in all such things lay tolerably near the foot of the mountain upon which Gnadeck stood. "I have brought you something that will show you every tree upon the mountains over there, and every blade of grass in the meadows of the valley," he continued, as he held an excellent spy-glass be-

And then the grand, solemn mountain domes seemed to approach, their granite peaks, sometimes crowned by a solitary fir, breaking through the forest here and there. Behind these nearest summits towered countless ranges in the blue misty light, and from a distant, dim valley which separated two giant mountains, arose two slender, shadowy gothic towers. A little river, a highway bordered by poplars, and several gay villages enlivened the background of the valley. In front lay Castle Lindhof, surrounded by a park laid out in princely style. Beneath the windows of the castle extended a closely shaven lawn, beset with small, quaintlyshaped beds glowing with all the colors of the rainbow. Thence Elizabeth's eyes scon wandered, and rested delightedly upon the mysterieus gloom of an avenue of magnificent lin-dens, their heavy foliage interlacing above their brown trunks, while here and there drooping boughs swept the ground beneath with their broad leaves. They bordered a little crystal at Memphis," said Elizabeth, laughing. lake, which just now looked melancholy enough "I don't believe he will marry at amid all its flowery surroundings, for its depths mirrored a cloudy sky. Now and then a swan stretched its white neck curiously among the low-hanging linden-boughs, and sent a shower of feathery spray from its wings to sprinkle their old trunks.

Hitherto Elizabeth had allowed the glass to attempted to hold it steadily, for she had made a discovery which excited her interest most powerfully.

Under the last trees of the avenue stood couch. A young lady lay upon it, her charming head thrown back so that a part of he chestnut curls fell down across the pillow. Beneath the hem of her long white muslin dress which enveloped her form to the throat, peeped out two tiny feet encased in gold-embroidered satin slippers. She held in her delicate almost transparent hands some auriculas, which she was thoughtlessly twisting and waving to and fro. Her lips alone showed any coloring; the rest of her face was lily-pale; one would almost have doubted its being infused with life had not the blue eyes gleamed so wondrously. But these eyes with their depth of expression were riveted upon the countenance of a man had been cleared, and showed distinct traces of who, aitting opposite, appeared to be reading having been tastefully laid out. She could aloud to her. Elizabeth could not see his face, easily proceed along a partially cleared path. for his back was turned toward her. "Is that lovely lady over there the Barones Lessen?" asked Elizabeth, eagerly.

The forester took the spy-glass. "No," said he, "that is Fraulein von Walde the sister of the proprietor of Lindhof. You the trees were somewhat thin, through a green call her charming, and certainly her head is lovely, but she is a cripple; she walks upon

But these people run in and out of the kingdom of heaven without any thought or preparation, and congratulate themselves upon the honor that they are

"From everything that I can gather from the villagers. I should judge not; but how does that mend the matter? He is probably at this moment prying into the pyramids that he may throw light upon antiquity; how should he know that his cousin here is zealously doing her best to blow out the advancing light of the present? Besides, I dare say he has a crack in his own brain. The prince of L____, who knows him well, wished some years ago to make a match between him and a young person of quality at court, but, as I hear, my man refused the alliance because the fair one's pedigree was not sufficiently long.'

"Why, perhaps then he may instal as mis-tress of Lindhot some fair daughter of a fellah, whose ancestors lie among the mummies

"I don't believe he will marry at all," joined the forester. "He is no longer young, is too fond of a wandering life, and has never shown any leve for women's society. "Has he any claims to them?" asked Frau

"Most certainly. He is the son of Baroness Lessen, whose family is the only one in the world related to the brother and sister von Walde. The Baroness was first married to a certain Herr von Hollfeld; that young man is the fruit of that marriage, and by the death of his father he came into possession of Odenberg, a large estate on the other side of L. The fair widow was fully conscious that freedom must be made available to assist her up at least one step in the ladder of human happiness and perfection, and naturally this could only be attained by a marriage with high rank, wherefore Frau von Hollfeld one day became Baroness Lessen. 'Tis true the baron's name had been made somewhat notorious by several acts on his part which people of com-mon, low-born ideas might call dishonorable; but what matter for that? Was he not a lord chamberlain, and did not the keys of his office unlock many a door for him where St. Peter's as she approached, and that it heralded her would have availed nothing, in spite of the coming to him as the jewel in the giant's shield power given to them? However, the baron died after two years of marriage, leaving his widow a little daughter and an enormous amount of debts. I have no doubt she is glad enough to queen it at Lindhof, for I hear that she has no part or parcel in her son's property."

Here a maid from the lodge interrupted them

Elizabeth was standing near the kitchen window, engaged, for the first time in her new home, in preparing the evening meal, when the men entered the garden with their burden. She cried out, for it was a piano, a large, quare piano, which was immediately borne up stairs, and placed in the gobelin room under Beethoven's bust. Elizabeth laughed and wept at the same moment, as she rapturously embraced her father, who had expended his little capital, the proceeds of the sale of their furniture in B—, that he might provide her again with what had been the delight of her life. And then she opened the instrument and a flood of rich melody filled the rooms where the silence of death had reigned for so many long

The forester had come with her father to enoy Elizabeth's surprise and delight. He now eaned silently against the wall, as the wondrous sounds flowed forth from beneath the girl's touch. For the first time he heard the true speech of the glowing life that animated the delicate young frame. How thoughtful and inspired was the air of the finely-shaped head which crowned her graceful form, so suggestive of earnest maidenhood. Hitherto only jests and merry repartee had been exchanged be-tween uncle and niece. He often called her his butterfly because of the airy grace of her motions and her quickness of mind, which never felt at a loss for a reply to his merry attacks but his favorite name for her was sie," for he maintained that her hair was such perfect gold that he could see it shining and shimmering in the darkest parts of the forest had once announced his approach to Childe Roland.

And then Ferber would think of how Elizabeth had portrayed the free life in the forest when the letter from her uncle had first arrived in B—. Tis true no elves or gnomes appeared, but the spirits which the mightiest of the masters of music had imprisoned in sound floated forth from their prison-house on a flood of melody, breathing nto the solemn silence around a mysterious life—a life of whose joys and sorrows every sympathetic human soul is conscious, although to genius alone is granted power to embody and reveal them.

One afternoon they were all sitting together at their coffee. The forester had brought his pipe and newspaper, and begged of Elizabeth a cup of the refreshing beverage. He was just about to read aloud an interesting article in saying much that was flattering with regard to the young girl's masterly performance on the piano, to which she had listened for the two or three previous evenings while walking in the forest, and concluded by preferring a request that Elizabeth would consent, of course, for a stipulated consideration, to come to Castle Lindhof every week and play duets with Frau-lein von Walde.

The style of the letter was extremely courteous; nevertheless the forester, after a second perusal of it, threw it angrily upon the table, and said, looking steadily at Elizabeth :

"I hope you will not consent."
"And why not, my dear Carl?" asked Fer-

"Because Elizabeth is, and always will be, far too good for those people down there," re-plied the forester, with some irritation. "But if you choose to see what you have carefully planted, choked up and ruined by poisonous weeds and mildew-why, do it."

"It is certainly true," replied Ferber, quietly. 'that my child has known until now none other than a parent's care. We have endeavored most conscientiously, as was our duty, to cherish every germ of good, to foster every plant of tender growth. But we have had no idea of producing a mere bot house flower, and alas for us and for her, if all that we have unweariedly tended and nourished for eighteen years is so syringa bush, was the canary's cage; its occur must battle her way among its storms, as we all must. If I should be taken from her to-day, she must herself guide the helm which I have hitherto held for her. If the people in the castle below are not fit associates for her, matters will soon arrange themselve. Either both parties will feel their unsuitableness to each other and all intercourse will cease, or everything that offends Elizabeth's principl's will pass by her like an idle wind, leaving no impression. Why, you yourself never avoid a danger, but rather prove your strength by meeting it bravely."

"But, zounds! I am a man, and can take care of myself."

"And how do you know that Elizabeth hereafter will possess any support except what she finds in herself, or have any sharer in the responsibility of her actions?

The forester cast a keen glance at his niece. whose earnest eyes were riveted on her father's face. He was to her the embodiment of wisdom, and tenderness was echoing her own ideas, and the expression of her beautiful face showed what she felt.

"Father," she said, "you shall see that you have not been mistaken-that I am not weak. I never could endure the trite image of the ivy and the oak, and shall most certainly not illustrate it in my own person. Be comforted, nncle dear, and let me go down to the castle," she said, smiling archly at the forester, whose forehead showed a deep frown of decided irritation. "If these people there are heartless, don't suppose for one moment that they will make a cannibal of me, and that I shall eat my own heart up. If they try to crush me with supercilious arrogance, my own inner standard of action shall be so high that I can look down in pity upon the harmless arrows of their scorn, and if they are hyporites, I shall turn with all the more delight to gaze into the sunny face of truth, and be more deeply convinced of the ugliness of their black masks."

us to look for ourselves, now and then, into the the chiefs of those tribes, through whose territreasures of the Bible, and to test by the touch-stone of history such of them as afford an opstone of history such of them as afford an op-portunity of being so tried.

In perusing the sacred pages we meet with a passage which has a singular appearance among the historical records. A simple and fugitive handmaid is encountered in the desert by an angel of the Lord, who cheers her and fore-tells a most extraordinary future to her progeny. The angel says to Hager, with regard to her future child, "And he wild be a will man; his hand will be against every men and ever an angel of the Lord, who cheers her and forehand will be against every man, and every man's hand against him; and he shall dwell in the presence of all his brethren." The child was to be Isbmael; and the clear and obvious meaning of the prophecy is this; that the Ishmaelites would form a distinct people, addicted to a nomadic desert life; that they should be hostile to all other people, and exercise violence and rapine upon all who came within their reach; that the surrounding pations would attack themin return; but that the Ishmaelites would never theless always maintain their savage independence, unmingled with, and unabsorbed by, any other nation. Surely here is a bold prediction of an extraordinary and almost incredible import. Could any man foretell, by a mere effort of the imagination, such an improbable destiny to any nation in the world? Could any one predict or believe that, whilst all the families of the human race must at some future time have nesseful intercourse with each other one per page. peaceful intercourse with each other, one particular nation alone would remain for ever apart from the fellowship of mankind, and out of the pale of society? Would any legislator or historian venture upon such a statement, and commit his future credit so needlessly and wantonly to the fulfilment of a prediction of this kind? A false prophet would not hazard such an extravagance. A mere statesman or politician would not think of uttering such an improbability. Common sense alone points out to us the only other alternative that remains. A true prophet might well describe such an extraordinary future, when writing nosuch an extraordinary future, when writing under Divine inspiration. Now, was Moses really such a prophet? Let us see. History slone must and will answer the question.

It is a well known fact, admitted beyond dispute in history, that the children and successors of Ishmael, forming numerous tribes, spread throughout Arabia, and occupied most parts of that yest peninsula which is divided by geometric to the contract of t graphers into Arabia Felix, Arabia Petræa and Arabia Deserta, and thence were designated by the name of Arabians or Arabs. Like all ancient nations, they had their long series of intestine wars and divisions, conquests and de-leats; but it is foreign to our object to speak of their habits and customs, beyond recording that many of their tribes have, from their origin to the present day, led a wild nomadic life, dwelling in temporary encampments, and roving about from one region to another; that they were generally addicted to rapine and plunder; and that no strangers have ever been safe in that extensive half-desert territory.

That territory—the land of Ishmael—has been almost inaccessible to foreigners since the earliest records of history, and the Arabs have between Lieutenant Feathersonehaugh, of the preserved their liberty and independence through all the political revolutions of the world—an ish regiment, in regard to the manner of eating example as surprising as it is unique in history. an ear of corn, one contending that the eating tiers of Arabia, nor obtain a footing among the Arabs. The powerful Persian monarchs long but vainly strove to subdue them; and Cambusters, in his great expedition against Egypt, was obliged to ask their leave to pass through sistant on the National Advocate, lost his life their territories. Later when Alexander had in 1827, at the duelling ground, Hoboken, with subjugated the Persian empire, the Arabians alone of all surrounding nations treated the in a simple dispute of what was trumps in great conqueror with contempt, and refused to send ambassadors to him who was the terror of the world. To chastise the proud and predatory hordes of Arabia, Alexander planned a grand expedition against them, to be supported by a naval force; but the scheme was brought to an end by the premature death of the great hero. The successors of Alexander made several attempts against the Arabs, but always without success. Indeed, the fate of Ishmael was written in indelible characters in these words—"And he shall dwell in the presence of his brethren." The Roman colossus arose, sweeping everything before him in Europe, Asia and Africa. Shall not the barbarous and undisciplined hordes of Arabia undergo the fate of other more powerful nations, and submit to the irresistible Roman eagles? No; the mighty Romans made a grand effort, but broke their power against the sentence decreed in a few short words we read in Genesis. Even when Syria had become a Roman province, the Roman invasions of Arabia failed, and the utmost efforts of the then masters of the world ended in making some tribes in Syria tributary to the empire. The Roman general who penetrated furthest into Arabia was Ælus Gallus, in the reign of Augustus, and he was soon obliged to retrace his steps after having lost the best part of his army. Under Trajan, the Romans occupied a portion of Arabia Petrea, but the in-habitants deserted it, and sought freedom in the Arabs continued to be what they were before. They have ever since maintained their liberty, independence and social isolation. Under the Caliphat all the tribes became united, and were moulded by religious fanaticism into one great nation. They then gave free vent to their love of conquest and plunder, and went forth with the sword of the "wild man," spreading their dominion over Asia, Africa and parts of Europe. They conquered and established colonies from the Indus to the Atlantic Ocean, and from the African deserts to the Mediterranean, having at one time subjugated and held parts of Italy, France, and Spain.

The Arabian Empire occupied an important place in history; and the sons of the desert, ever aggressive and ever on the move, because the terror of the neighboring patients. ert, ever aggressive and ever on the move, be-came the terror of the neighboring nations. The hand of Ishmael was "against every man, and every man's hand against him." They had brilliant successes and severe disasters; and after varied fortunes, their own wants of discipline, their internal fends, and the incursions of the Turks and Tartars, broke upon the Arabian Empire. Out of its ruins a number of new kingdoms were formed in Asia and Africa, in which the Arab element maintained itself with more or less of its own original characteristics. But Arab Proper never has been subjugated never conquered by any other nation. The sons of Ishmael have ever held their own against the world. The Turkish conquerers, who established the Ottoman Empire, have met in Arabia the same successful resistance as all those who preceded them; and if, through similarity of transgression.

Messrs. Brown & Rumrill, No. 20 Montgomery at the Arabia the Street.

If a man is insolent, it is a sign that he has been guilty of transgression.

BIBLICAL HISTORY.

THE ISHMAELITES.—At a time when superficial knowledge and unbridled presumption wantonly attack that sacred fabric which the judgment and experience of ages have venerated, and which has ever proved the best friend to mankind, it is both a duty and a comfort to mankind, it is both a duty and a comfort to mankind, it is both a duty and a comfort to mankind, it is both a duty and a comfort to mankind, it is both a duty and a comfort to mankind, it is both a duty and a comfort to mankind, it is both a duty and a comfort to mankind, it is both a duty and a comfort to mankind, it is both a duty and a comfort to mankind, it is both a duty and a comfort to mankind, it is both a duty and a comfort to mankind, it is both a duty and a comfort to the chiefe of those tribes through whose town.

of the Arabs have undergone hardly any change since the patriarchal times, the same virtue and vices, the same semi-barbarism and isolation that distinguished the sons of Ishmael of old, are still characteristic of the Arabs of the preswriter says of the Arabs, "Their own writers acknowledge that they have a natural disposition for war, bloodshed, cruelty and rapine. The frequent robberies committed by them on mer-chants and travelers have rendered the name of an Arab almost infamous in Europe; of this they are sensible, and endeavor to excuse themselves by alleging the hard usage of their father Ishmeel, who, being turned out of doors by Abraham, had the open plains and desert given him by God for his patrimony, with permission to take whatever he could find there."

Here, then, we have a race which, notwithstanding the unavoidable contact and communi cation with many other races, have never changed or modified its primitive habits, manners and character; has never amalgamated with other nations; have never ceased to have its hand mised "against all, and the hand of all against it;" and which in spite of assaults by powerful empires and numerous wars with mighty neighbors, has never been conquered or subdued. Other barbarous nations, and even savages, have been, and are gradually drawn into the circle of humanity and civilization, are being slowly driven from a state of isolation into social intercourse, and assimilated with the other great families of mankind. Not so Ishmael. In the very centre of the old world, in the midst of universal and advancing civilization, and with all the natural accociative tendencies of man, Ishmael stands immovable and alone to this day, wild and free like the desert—a phenomenon unique in history, and astonishing to the careful observer. And this wonder has been foretold to the latter in a few expressive words more than thirty centuries

With such facts before us, we now ask again in conclusion, could such a prophecy be uttered otherwise than under direct Divine inspiration?

WHAT MEN HAVE DIED FOR .- Colonel Montgomery was shot in a duel about a dog. Colonel Ramsey in one about a servant. Mr. Featherstone in one about a recruit. Sterne's father in one about a goose; and another gen-tleman in one about an "acre of anchovies;" one officer was challenged for merely asking his opponent to the second goblet; and another was compelled to fight about a pinch of snuff. Was compened to light about a pinch of shuff. General Barry was challenged by Captain Smith for declining wine on a steamboat, although the General pleaded as an excuse that wine invari-ably made him sick; and Lieutenant Cowther lost his life in a duel, because he was refused admittance to a club of pigeon shooters.

In 1777 a duel occurred in New York city The aggressive Assyrian and Babylonian was from the cob, and the other contending nations never could penetrate beyond the fronthat the grain should be cut from the cob before sistant on the National Advocate, lost his life Barton, the son-in-law of Edward Livingston, game of cards.

> APOSTATE JEWS .- Steinberg, a German nobleman, thus speaks of conversion in his memoirs:
> "As to baptism of Jews that is a peculiar affair. But the smallest portion go over to the church from conviction; those who go over, have long before their going over, been Jews no more, as they, by their baptism, do not be-come Christians, although they have a right henceforth to call themselves such. The genuine Jew, in whom the flame of faith burns with that power which draws nourishment from the consciousness of the high vocation and the sufferings and persecutions of his race for thousands of years; they are immovable, and look upon converts with contempt. His little dark nook in the synagogue, where he repeats the prayers of his torefathers, where the awe and rapture, the whole glory of his people overwhelm him, that nook is his world which he would not exchange for the sumptuous palaces of the world without.

A GOOD SWIMMER.—Sir P. Francis has brought under the notice of the Foreign Office, England, the gallant conduct of Alexander M'Nair, a seaman, who distinguished himself at the wreck of the barque Tyne a short time ago. The Tyne was wrecked about half a mile from the shore of the Island of Marmora, and the crew would probably have perished with the ship had not M'Nair jumped into the sea, and The Roman empire crumbled to pieces, and he Arabs continued to be what they were being fastened to the shore by M'Nair formed the means of escape for the captain and the crew. M'Nair belongs to Dundee, and though he has been only eight years a sailor has suffered shipwreck five times, on one occasion having to swim three miles for his life.

> THE CHAMPION EATER of the United State is named Josiah Plumb. A short time ago he entered a restaurant in Hudson, N. Y., and offered to eat all that any one would pay for.
> The challenge having been accepted, he disposed of the following articles: Ten pieces of apple pie, six corn cakes, a quarter of a pound of crackers, eix cups of peanuts, thirty pickled clams, four lemons, an ounce of candy, and two hows of clam soun. He then drank six time. bowls of clam soup. He then drank six tum-blers of water, and offered to eat a hundred raw oysters. No one doubted his ability to accom-plish the feat but no one was willing to pay for the oysters, and so he went off grumbling that he wasu't half full.

> Ir is supposed that one of the effects of the revolution in Spain will be the cutting off of $1,000,000 in gold, the ecclesiastical dues sent anually to Rome.

ISRAEL'S MISSION.

"Now, therefore, if ye will obey my voice indeed, and keep my covenant, then ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto me above all people ; for all the earth is mine : And ye shall be unto me a kingdom of priests, and an holy na-

Have you ever, dear reader, thought of the reason why the Jewish race, notwithstanding all the trials it has undergone, has always preserved its nationality, and retained all the qualities which constitute a people?

A single one of the many blows that have out from the roll of nations the names of races more numerous and mightier much than we; but it was not to be so. Though scattered over the world, without any visible bond to unite us, without any central or governing authority to direct us, we have weathered the storm of ages. withstood the knawing tooth of time, and the destroying hand of persecution. At the present day, and after thirty centuries of the fiery ordeal, we may witness how Jews, by their genius and attainments, are gaining the highest posts of honor, and holding most distinguished positions in society.

Even the profound physiologist is unable to account for the wonderful vitality we possess, and for the physical power which enables us to become acclimatized, and to multiply in whatever part of the world we may settle. And although we freely mix with the nations among whom we dwell, acquiring their dress, language, and manners, yet our people "dwells alone, and among other nations it is not reckoned."

And is it not even more strange that even at the present day, whilst the prophecy is be ing fulfilled to the very letter, that for its sins Israel would become "an astonishment, a proverb, and a byword among all the nations:" on the other hand, a prediction of the very opposite character is being also accomplished, that our neighbors say of us, "Surely, this great nation is a wise and understanding people;" and that even our very enemies have to make the avowal concerning members of the Hebrew race that "all states, all things, all sovereigns they control."

Truly, these are strange anomalies, anomalies too, which are not only apparent in this present age, but have existed ever since our dispersion and even before that time. In Egypt, in Babylon, in Persia, under the sway of the Greeks and Romans, during the long dark Middle Ages, we read of Jews ground to the very dust or hunted from one land to the other. But wherever their weary feet were allowed to rest. there they flourished and prospered, outvieing their neighbors both in material wealth and intellectual worth. And whether at the court of the Oriental potentate, of the Khaliff, or king of modern days, we read of Jews aiding and surrounding the throne as phisicians, philosophers, or ministers.

Indeed, it is the Jews who are and have been God's chosen people, "His peculiar treasure." And, truly, of no other nation in the annals of history, can the like be said. "It was God's angel that saved them in their afflic- to belong to the kingdom of priests, or be of tion, in His love and pity He redeemed them, and He bare them and carried them all the days have seen, men of note and talent leaving the of old."

But not alone has God's mercy been proved toward us in so marked a manner. He has done even more for us. He has used us as his instruments to work out an object, which we may feel truly proud at having been entrusted to us. He has regarded us as priests to all nations. Israel has been engaged in a task of no mean importance, a task with which the enlightenment and civilization of the world stands in intimate connexion. Israel has undertaken and promoted, amid a benighted world, the spread of the knowledge of, and the belief, in the true God. From Abraham of old down to seed is its stock. this very day, Israel has worked in this great and all-important mission.

who, by God's favor, and by his indefatigable zeal, promulgated the belief in One only God. This great truth was handed down from father to son, and was fostered by the children of Israel in the land of Egypt. Notwithstanding the abject animal worship that prevailed in that country, they preserved their belief unsullied.

and considered it their most valued heritage. The doctrines respecting God's unity and alldirecting providence, received their full development at the revelation on Sinai, but the nations of the earth were not then in a sufficiently advanced state to receive and adopt such lofty ideas. Their craving was after a religion that would feed their superstitious credulity and appeal to their senses, which would give them gods with human passions and weaknesses and would multiply those gods until they covered every field, and swarmed in every forest. with the more reflective and enlightened men among the Greeks, Romans, and Arabs, did it begin to exercise its influence.

Then arose those two religions which may be considered as having branched off from the parent stem-the Law of Sinai-but both presenting the truth in garbs and colors, in some degree adapted to the then state and habits of the pagan mind, and to the various political and social conditions of the times and nations among which they were introduced. Though the purity of the original source thus became much tainted and obscured, yet the new creeds rapidly spread and were in themselves, when contrasted with paganism, huge strides onward in the path of human improvement and civilization

Truly, then, the faith of Abraham has been the strain; some boasting of their delicious preserved by us. and diffused through us in a fruits, some of the beauties or fragrance of their wonderful manner; and seeing, as we do, the working of Providence up to the present day, we have well-grounded reason to hope that through us also the other prophecies will be fulfilled, that "the Lord will be king over all the earth : in that day the Lord will be One and His name One;" "whom all nations will allow the superiority; when lo! he heard a call upon to serve with one consent." And what more glorious foreshadowing can there be I have deemed fit to bestow upon you. Ye are than the words placed by the prophet in the alike deficient of the virtue of humility. To mouth of the nations, "Come ye, and let us the humble bulrush shall be assigned the superigo up to the mountain of the Lord, the house been leveled at us would have sufficed to blot of the God of Jacob; and He will teach us of His ways, and we will walk in His paths; for out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of the Lord out of Jerusalem."

> These are some of the prophecies foretold to us, the gradual realization of which is slowly but surely developing itself. Surely, then, our God has kept His promise. He has regarded us as His peculiar treasure, as a kingdom of priests, as His missionaries of truth.

But what have we done on our part? Priests we have been, and, in one sense, even now are ; the truth; let us plainly look facts in the face. Walk through the streets of many a town, and their avocations, they give you the impression of being a holy nation? Is the Holy Law observed by the "nation of priests," reverently, faithfully, and zealously? Are its moral lessons adopted, and is its dietary and sanitary the good of his people. Selfishness was not a code strictly followed?

Every day we see with what increased reverence our neighbors observe and respect their alleviate the sufferings of those around him Sabbath, and we are so impatient at the restraint put upon us by the clearest Divine command, and so reluctant to sacrifice it to our even where the Sabbath and Festivals are outwardly kept, are they devoted to their high spiritual purposes, to elevate our minds and to direct our thoughts heavenwards?

Furthermore, can we hope to obey God's voice and properly keep his covenant, if we do so little to cultivate the knowledge of our holy the deceased. language, or our acquaintance with the Divine precents, if we are not even careful that they are imparted to our children? And yet it is the very essence of upholding God's covenant, that "the godly spirit which is upon us, and the words which have been put in our mouths, should not depart out of our mouths, nor out of the mouth of our seed, nor out of the mouth of our seed's seed, from henceforth and forever." Should we not, at least, feel covered with shame at our peglect and ignorance of the very language in which God communed with our forefathers, in which their history is written, and through which our duties and rules of life are conveyed to us, and our aspirations and prayers are uttered? And ought we not to strive to obliterate this blot, when the means are to be found at our command?

But perhaps some of our brethren may say, 'We do not care to observe these commandthe holy nation." We may see, and alas! we pale of our religion—but what of them? They His history is only made up of burnings, massamay succeed and prosper for a time, but the cres, and pillages-it is one long uniform tale everlasting arm that has upheld Israel is removed from them.

THE WORTHIEST OF TREES.

A weary traveler had been journeying all day across an arid plain under a scorching sun, and was almost overcome with fatigue, when at ength his path led him into a thick forest where the spreading boughs of many a stately tree cast a cool shade over the ground.

Winding amid the trees was a gently-flowing rivulet, and on its brink grew crowds of bulrushes with bending stems, and heads humbly atooping to the stream beneath.

Here the traveler rested, and as he lay on the ground, began to admire the beautiful trees by which he was surrounded, and to wonder which was the most valuable of them all. Thus thinking, he fell asleep, and dreamt. Behold, in his dream, he saw the trees of the forest pleading before him, each claiming to be considered

First spoke the cedar, and said, "What tre can be compared to me? On the lofty heights of Lebanon is my abode, and my top touches ered every field, and swarmed in every ferest. the sky. Under my fair spreading boughs all Only when our purer religion came into contact the beasts of the field find shelter. Of me kings build their palaces, princes their mansions. All men admire me; all peets have sung my praise. Surely I am the king of the trees. "No," said the palm; "with all thy vain boast, O cedar, thou art barren, thou yieldest no sweet fruits, which satisfy the hungry, and re fresh the weary. And does not my tall trunk excite the admiration of men? Useful and beautiful, I claim to be king of the trees."

Then spake the myrtle: "Ye, tall trees, lack my fragrant odor. Ye gratify only man's bodily wants; but my sweet scent delights his soul. When hungry, he like the brute, eagerly eats of thy fruit, O palm! when weary, he, like the beasts of the field, lies down under thy shades, O cedar. But when his soul is calm and serene, when contemplating the glories of his Maker, then he holds in his hand a sprig of my boughs, and its grateful fragrance raises his lofty thoughts still higher. And so I claim the royal crown of trees."

Then a multitude of other plants took up flowers. Each, on account of some quality of its own, claimed the pre-eminence.

But the poor bulrushes, that grew on the bank of the rivulet, were silent. They knew that they had nothing to boast of, and they humbly held their peace. The wayfarer in his dream felt puzzled, not knowing to which of the haughty candidates to ority. Its meek silence is in my ears more eloquent than your pompous boasts. Moses, meekest of men has been chosen by me, as the messenger, through whom my Law shall be given to the world : and the meekest of men shall choose the meekest of trees, as the instrument with which to write that Law."

And so Moses wrote the Law with a reed of the lowly bulrush .- J. A. D. R. K.

Houston, Texas .- The service of inauguration of the tombstone recently erected by the Hebrew ladies, of Houston, Texas, in respect to the memory of the Rev. Dr. Steiner, took place in this manner. There were quite a num-ber of ladies and gentlemen present on the ocbut are we a holy nation; let us not conceal casion. The ceremony was solemn and impressive in the highest degree, and seemed to vividly recall the sorrows of the past year, when the pestilence stalked abroad in that fair city, carrying desolation to the hearthstones of so many families. Dr. Steiner was a man of rare intellectual abilities a thorough scholar and a most exemplary follower and teacher of the faith to which he belonged. He worked earnestly for part of his nature. To be happy and to make his fellow beings happy seemed to be his aim in life. He was stricken down while laboring to and as a mark of respect to his memory the ladie of the Jewish congregation erected a marble

The ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Dr. De Levante, who addressed the assemblage in a eloquent and touching oration, in honor of

Upon the conclusion of the Reverend Doctor's address, some psalms were repeated, and a prayer closed the imposing ceremony. The people were all moved to tears, which evidenced the affection which the deceased minis ter had gained in the hearts of his people.

A man struck down in the prime of life and in the midst of his career, always leaves a sad impress on the memory of the surviving. But a man called from hence in the very act of selfdenying humanity, as was the case with the deceased, claims a lasting item in our memory.

CONDEMNATION OF ISLAMISM,-It is well that the Great Mogul is extinct,-and it would be well for mankind if the Grand Turk also were no more. No curse that has afflicted the human race has ever been so baneful as that mankind. The Moslem rose as a storm-wave to entomb all the great works of ancient power and wisdom beneath its deluge, and to plunge the world into a state of barbarism that has perpetuated despotism, ignorance, and anarchy for many a long century. PHILADELPHIA.—At the Cemetery, Fiftysixth and Market streets, on Thursday, 28th January, the Jewish citizens of Philadelphia assembled to assist in the dedication of a monument to the late Rev. Isaac Leeser, founder and first minister of the Congregation Beth El Emeth, Franklin street, and for over forty years connected with the ministry in this city. was for nearly twenty-five years the editor of the Occident, the first Jewish periodi-

The monument is entirely devoid of ornament. The plinth or base, of Pennsylvania blue stone, beautifully paneled, is over four feet square. The sub-base is of Italian marble, and is three-and-a-half feet wide by one-and-a-half thick. The die upon which the inscriptions are cast is three feet square. The whole is sur mounted by the shaft, which is over thirtee feet high, making the full height twenty-four feet. Its weight is about twelve tons, requiring a foundation eight feet deep.
On the south side of the die is the following inscription:

MR. PEABODY'S BENEFACTIONS.—The benefactions of Mr. George Peabody are far larger than generally supposed. A short time since, when his latest gift of half a million of dollars to the London poor was announced, we spoke of his donations as amounting to an aggregate of over four millions of dollars. But we have been furnished with an authentic list of Mr. Peabody's gifts, and we find that they amount to over double this sum-in fact, they amount in all to over ten million dollars in our currency. The following list (gold values) will display the remarkable facts; and this list does not include the large sum he gave to further American in-terests in the Great Exhibition of 1851, nor other large sums he has given for international

MASONIC BOARD OF RELIEF .- An entertain- for the ribbon. ment, in aid of the Masonic Board of Relief, will take place on the 18th inst., in Union Hall. The Laemlein Sisters-Miss Emma and Rebecca—have kindly offered their services. In speaking of these young ladies, we cannot refrain from expressing our admiration of the rapid progress of these artistes. We prophecy for them a bright future on their artistic career. California may well be proud of them.

THE common supposition is, a member of the Secretary of the Treasury for the year 1867 to 1868 (p. 68) however shows, that Congress for that year cost the country $3,251,611,61. Say there were 300 members in both houses then each member cost the country $10,838.00 not to count fractions, which is the actual salary of a member of Congress per annum.

Welcome Back .- Passing by the office of Mr. Gattel, we espied the pleasant phiz of our old friend, Mr. Julius Jacobs, Superintendent of Agencies of the Germania Life Insurance Company, who has returned from an extended trip to Oregon and the Northern Territories. We were glad to be able to shake hands with which Mahomedan rule has proved itself to him again, so will, no doubt, be his many friends in this city.

the Second Sunday in May.

California Theatre was filled last Sunday night with lovers of music, who assembled to listen to the only good Concert which has been given for nearly a year in our city. The Orchestra contained thirty-six of our first musicians, under the leadership of Mr. Herold, the best musical director on this coast. Beethoven's Symphonie in D. opened the entertainment. Considering that many of the musicians participating had not attended any rehearsals at all, the Symphonic, with the exception of the Larghetto, was played very well indeed. We had occasion, last year, while in Berlin, to listen to this Symphonie, played by Professor Liebig's pelebrated Orchestra. The fault, if any, in the performance last Sunday, lays wholly with those instrumentalists who did not attend any rehearsals. These gentlemen should reflect that however able they might be of playing music at sight, Beethoven's Symphonies require a certain Zusammenspielen which can only be perfected at rehearsals. A Cavatina from "I due Foscari." was rendered by Signorina Maria Valerga. This lady, a pupil of Mr. Spadini, first clarionetist of the California Theatre, Orchestra, possesses a fine soprano voice, and although slighty nervous, this being her first appearance in public, rendered the Cavatina very well. A Horn Solo was played by Mr. Schlotte, in his usual artistic manner. The Misses Laemlein. the bright stars in the artistic firmament of California, surprised the audience by the advance they had made lately in pianoforte playing; they showed themselves really to be actual virtuosos; their technical skill, especially, is surprising. Miss Emma played Mendelssohn's "Wedding March," arranged by Liszt; Miss Rebecca, a Fantasia from "Sonambula." by Thalberg; and together they performed the Overture of "William Tell," arranged by Gottschalk. As the sisters appeared on the stage to render the last-named piece, they were intercepted by Mr. Alexander Heumann, President of the Musical Fund Society, who, having two gold medals, attached to ribbon, in his hand, addressed them as follows:

THE MUSICAL FUND SOCIETY CONCERT .- The

"Ladies: I have to request your kind attention for a few moments. I am delegated on this occasion to perform a pleasing and willing, although somewhat difficult task. As President of this Society, I have been requested by its members, as well as by your numerous friends throughout California, to present to you these gold medals, as an expression of their good will and esteem." (He then stepped forward and placed the ribbons to which the medals were attached around their neck.) Your friends have always with pleasure neticed the rapid progress which you have made, by hard study, in the profession you have adopted, and with pleasure they have always applauded you whenever you have appeared before the public. But they have applauded you so often, that they wish to show their appreciation of your talent in a more durable and substantial manner. On their behalf, I return to you their sincere thanks for your services on this, and many former occasions.

The medals weigh about four ounces each. and cost $100 spiece. On one side is embossed the great seal of the State of California, and upon the opposite, the following words: "Presented by the San Francisco Musical Fund Society, to Misses Emma and Rebecca Laemlein. San Francisco, March 7th, 1869. Surmounting each medal is a miniature gold harp with a ring

Hearty applause greeted the talented sisters at the conclusion of the pleasant incident. The beautiful medals will be especially prized by the young pianists, as coming from such a body of first-class musicians as the Musical Fund Society is composed of. Miss Helen Dingeon, with her fine, fresh voice, sang Schubert's Serenade, and being encored, gave the Nightingale's Thrill. This lady always makes a beautiful appearance on the stage. Her singing is faultless, she having studied at the celebrated Congress receives $3000 a year. The report of Conservatoirs of Leipzig and Vienna. Wagner's Fantasie from Tannhauser, the Overture to "Athalia," by Mendelssohn, and the Overture to Rossini's "La Gazza Ladra," were splendidly performed by the Orchestra. The Concert, as a whole, was a decided success.

> MAGUIRE'S OPERA HOUSE .- Mr. Hartz, the best Illusionist who has ever appeared on this coast, closes his performances to-morrow night, and all who have not witnessed his really clever illusions, should not fail by any means to see him. Next week Mr. Hartz will begin his tour through the Interior, and won't he astonish the natives? The Ben Cotton and Murphy Minstrel Troupe will appear next week at the above Theatre. There will surely be a rush to see these sable princes of fun.

TT HAS LONG BEEN A DESIDERATUM WITH A large portion of the public to obtain a light, pure, and palatable preparation, invigorating and healthful in its effects, and which, while embracing all the elements of a popular beverage, should contain so little of alcoholic properties as to make it a desirable acquisition to Ladies, invalids, and persons not accustomed to the use of alcoholic stimulants. The proprietors of Dr. Henley's IX L Wild Grape-root Bitters, encouraged by the wonderful success of that celebrated preparation, take pleasure in offering to the public another article, which they are confident will meet with very general favor. with very general favor.

DR. HENLEY'S SPICED WINE

BITTERS

These Bitters are carefully prepared from the choicest Wines of California, and the Richest Spices the world affords; they act on the general system; purify the blood; renovate the digestive organs, invigorate their action, and restore their natural tone and power; they stimulate the secretive powers of the liver, regulate the functions of the bowels, give buoyancy to the animal spirits, elasticity to the body, and health and vigor to the general constitution.

As we are engaged solely in the manufacture of BIT-TERS, we have superior facilities, and can supply the Trade with a better and cheaper quality than any other House on this Coast. Our Bitters are for sale at all respectable Bars and Groceries. Consumers should not be imposed upon with trasby imitations, but demand the gen

LOUIS A. GARNETT, | GEO. W. SMILEY, JAMES MCMECHAN, | COLL DEANE. THIS CLAIM WAS LOCATED on the 27th of June, 1868, and therefore takes rank among the oldest locations. It is situated about 1,500 feet southwest of the Eberhardt Mine. The Board of Trustees propose to raise the sum of Ten Thousand Dollars, to be used exclusively as a working capital. For that purpose, they will sell 2,000 Shares Un-ASSESSABLE Stock in TWO series. The First series of 1,000 shares is now offered at $5 per share. Should the sum ($5,000) raised from sale of same, prove sufficient to place the Mine in a paying condition, then a stock dividend of the remaining 1,000 shares, alike unassessable, will be declared to ALL owners of stock. The prospective value of this claim is equal to any in the District. Books of the Company will be open for subscription on THURSDAY, the 11th inst., at 9 o'clock. At this season, when coughs and colds are so prevalent, an effectual remedy, and one easily obtained, is Perry Davis' Vegetable "Pain Killer." It is no new nostrum, vended by unknown agents, but has stood the test of over twenty years: and those who use the article, internally or externally, will connect with it grateful recollections of its worthy inventor. Hastings' Chronicle, C. W.

PAIN KILLER.—The testimonials borne to the officacy of this valuable medicine are sufficient to warrant its introduction in every house. Our own opinion is that no family should without a bottle of it for a single hour. In flesh wounds, aches, pains, sores, eta, it is the most effectual remedy we know of. A bottle will last for a very long time, and its low price places it within the reach of all.—St. John Nove.

We are glad to learn that the "Pain Killer" is having so large a sale in our city. We have every reason to believe it to be an almost never failing cure for pain, and a medicine that no family should be without.—Montreal Pilot.

AN old and experienced physician says, "much that he learned under the name of science has died out, and that simple homely experience has largely taken the place of that scholastic knowledge to which he and perhaps his instruct-The fact is, that "simple homely experience."
The fact is, that "simple homely experience."
is the gist of his scholastic attainments, and a really successful medicine, compounded of vegetable products, like Dr. Walker's Vegetable Vinegar Bitters, proves the scientific research that has made it such.

PREVENTION BETTER THAN CORE.—The truth of this adage is forcibly illustrated in the case of those who take care of their teeth. How many persons are termented with aching stumps, or distigured by discolored teeth and gums, who might be in possession of sound, service-able teeth, bright, rosy gums and lips, and a sweet breath, had they adopted the use of that gen of the tollet, Dr. Spencer's Fragrant Sapolite, for cleansing, whitening and preserving the teeth. the teeth. Watches and Diamonds —In another column will be found the pros-pectus of the Banner State Mining Co., White Pine District, Nevada. This claim has been lo-cated since the 27th of June, 1868 and is located about 1,500 feet from the Eberhardt Mine. The shares in this Co. are unassessable. The names of the Trustees are a guarantee of the solidity of the enterprise. The books of the Co. will be open for subscription at the office, No. 424 Montgomery street.

Savesure.—Parties who wish to make ex-cursions in the environs of the city, should not forget that Saucelito is one of the finest places they can go to. The steamer Princess having been recoppered and refitted, leaves Meigg's Whari regularly at 9 A. M. and 2 and 4 P. M., on week days and at 11 a. at and 1, 8 and 6

Merchants from the interior now in the city should not fail to get their life insured in the California Mutual Life Insurance Co., of San Francisco, a home company, among the directors of which are our principal merchants and solid men.

Having great facilities, this firm is enabled to sell to jobbers Clothing and Furnishing Goods 25 per Centless than any other house in this city. Merchants from the interior especially will find it to their benefit to call.

— For a really fine and pure glass wine or liquor, or for a fine Havana cigar, we know no better place in this city, as Mr. John C. Keenan's, N. W. corner Montgomery and Merchant streets. A really fine het lunch is daily served to the guests.

ATTENTION!—If you want a good fitting pair of boots or shoes made to order at liberal prices, go to T. Bees, No. 315 Bush street. This gentleman will give to everybody satisfaction, and guarantees for his work.

Year after year, for an eighth of a centu-ry, the Press of the country has chronicled the beneficial effects of HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, Editors, authors, physicians, merchants, officers of the army and navy, chemists, connectors, ministers of the gospel, in short, a great cloud of witness-es of every profession, trade and calling, have testified to its efficacy as a tonic and regulating medicine. The names and statements of these witnesses have been published in the public prints. Many of them are well known to the whole public. Their testimony has never been challenged or impugned. Upon evidence far less weighty men are acquitted or HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS are not, however, spon trial. It has been tried and pronounced on the authority of those whose lives and health it has preserved, a pure, harmless, and eminently salutary preparation. Attempts have been made to rival it. They have failed. Can it be necessary to say why they have failed? Ask the recovered dyspeptics, bilious sufferers, victims of fever and ague, and nervous subjects who have experienced its effects, what they think of it. Ask them and be guided solely by what they say. Sold everywhere.

In der Langen-Gaffe wurde ein neues Saus gebaut. Das war für Ephraim eine große Freude; er war bon bem Bauplat nicht wegzubringen, und balb wurde er nicht nur von den Maurerleuten, benen er hie und ba etwas jur Sand reichte, fondern auch vom Oberpolier und fogar vom Baumeifter als zum Bau gehörig betrachtet. Barnungstafeln, auf welchen bie unfreundlichen Borte zu lefen find: Fremden ift ber Eintritt un-terfagt — wie man fie bei Bauten in gröfreut, herbeikommen und zusehen, nach Herzensluft. Aber bas ist nun wieder nicht Jedermann's Sache, sich an der Enkstehung eines Hauses so recht innerlich und von Herz gensgrund zu freuen. Go machte benn von ber Freiheit bes Eintritts Reiner in fo ausgedehntem Dage Gebrauch, als unfer Ephraim. Er lernte ba aber auch viel Reues ber Mechanic und Architeftur Aufschluf gu geben, obgleich er feineUhnung hatte, bag es Bücher gebe, in benen bas Alles flar beichrieben, und aus benen man es richtig lernen tonne.
